

IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES.

FEBRUARY 2, 1858.—Ordered to be printed.

Mr. JONES submitted the following

REPORT.

The Committee on Pensions, to whom was referred the petition of Elijah Roath, asking for a pension, report :

That the said Roath alleges that he was a soldier in the war of 1812, and that whilst engaged in active service became injured in the left side, which rendered him unfit for duty, and for a considerable time unable to perform labor. His statements, however, are entirely unsupported by concurring testimony, and therefore your committee recommend that the prayer of the petitioner be not granted.

Mr. Jones submitted the following

of the Committee on Education and Labor, in response to a resolution of the Senate, passed July 1, 1937, relating to the proposed amendment to the National Labor Relations Act.

The committee has the honor to acknowledge the receipt of the report of the National Labor Relations Board, dated December 1, 1937, in response to a resolution of the Senate, passed July 1, 1937, relating to the proposed amendment to the National Labor Relations Act. The report of the Board is a valuable contribution to the understanding of the problems involved in the proposed amendment, and the committee is indebted to the Board for its thorough and impartial investigation. The committee has carefully considered the report, and has concluded that the proposed amendment is not in the best interests of the labor movement, and should not be adopted. The committee believes that the existing law is sufficient to protect the rights of labor, and that the proposed amendment would create a number of new problems, which would be difficult to solve. The committee therefore recommends that the proposed amendment be rejected.
